IEEE CTW 2015

The workshop will be held at the Laguna Cliffs Marriott Resort and Spa in Dana Point, Orange County, California. The continued success of this workshop lies in its informal and highly interactive atmosphere. The goal of the workshop is to explore research at the intersection of theory and practice. As always, the workshop will be single track with plenary speakers, technical sessions, panel discussions, and a hot-topics evening poster session. The technical sessions will consist of invited lectures given by leaders in both academia and industry. The hot-topics poster session is an open call. Join us there to learn about the current trends in the area of communications and enjoy the informal exchange with experts and fellow researchers.

Call for Posters on Recent Results

The technical program committee is soliciting contributions for the poster session devoted to recent results in the general area of communication theory. We especially encourage students and junior researchers to participate. There will be no published proceedings. Extended abstracts (IEEE conference format, 2 pages maximum) should be submitted with CTW 2015 in the subject line to:

Ayfer Özgür at aozgur@stanford.edu
Bobak Nazer at bobak@bu.edu

Electronic submissions must be in the Adobe PDF format, and of sufficient detail to permit careful review.
